

Planned Parenthood and Minnesota

Planned Parenthood Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota (PPMNS), the regional PPFA affiliate, operates Minnesota’s largest abortion facility in St. Paul. (PPMNS recently joined with another affiliate to become Planned Parenthood North Central States.) The center performed a record-high 6,234 abortions in 2017, according to the Minnesota Department of Health—more than three times that of the state’s next highest practitioner.

Contrary to state and national abortion trends, abortions at PPMNS have consistently gone up. As the overall state abortion total decreased 26 percent from 2007 to 2017, Planned Parenthood increased its abortions by 59 percent. In 2007, Planned Parenthood performed 28 percent of Minnesota abortions; 10 years later, it performed 61 percent.

But while Planned Parenthood’s abortion numbers continue to rise, it provides fewer of many of its non-abortion services. PPMNS’s contraceptive services have plummeted 83 percent since 2013, according to the organization’s annual reports. And PPMNS’s cancer screenings have dropped 56 percent.<sup>10</sup>

In the year ending June 30, 2018, PPMNS generated revenue of nearly $54 million, including more than $5 million from the government. The group benefits from Minnesota’s policy of Medicaid-funded abortion, which allows Planned Parenthood to offer “free” (state-funded) abortions to low-income women. PPMNS billed Minnesota taxpayers a record-high $562,728 for a record-high 2,570 abortions in 2017, according to the Minnesota Department of Human Services. Planned Parenthood has increased its tax-funded abortions by 197 percent since 2011.

Planned Parenthood doesn’t deserve our support

Planned Parenthood is in the business of ending the lives of human beings before they are born. And it is a profitable business. But it does not deserve our support or our tax dollars.

PLANNED PARENTHOOD:

Abortion. Money. Politics. Scandal.

Planned Parenthood portrays itself as an indispensable provider of women’s health care. But what do the facts tell us?

Year after year, Planned Parenthood makes hundreds of millions of dollars by performing hundreds of thousands of abortions while providing fewer and fewer non-abortion services. It vigorously seeks to defeat public policies that would limit abortion in any way. And it is heavily subsidized by American taxpayers.

Here’s what everyone needs to know about Planned Parenthood.

Planned Parenthood and abortion

The Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA) performed 332,757 abortions in 2017,<sup>1</sup> according to the group’s 2017-2018 annual report. That makes Planned Parenthood, by far, the leading practitioner of abortion in the United States.

In recent years, the annual abortion total at Planned Parenthood has remained fairly stable (ranging from about 320,000 to 334,000) even as overall abortions in the country have dropped significantly. Most of Planned Parenthood’s other services, by contrast, have consistently declined. Contraceptive services have dropped 32 percent since 2009. Cancer screenings (mostly manual breast exams and pap tests) have dropped 66 percent. “Prenatal services” (which were always very rare) have plummeted 78 percent. “Total services” provided by Planned Parenthood are down 14 percent.

Among the three pregnancy-related services Planned Parenthood provides women who are already pregnant (abortion, adoption referral, prenatal services), abortion accounts for 97 percent. For every one adoption referral, Planned Parenthood performs 118 abortions. The group is 37 times more likely to perform an abortion than to provide any prenatal care.

Planned Parenthood and money

Planned Parenthood took in a record $1.67 billion in revenue during the fiscal year ending June 30, 2018. That’s an increase of more than $200 million over the previous year and a 59 percent rise since 2009<sup>2</sup>—even as the organization has provided fewer services to fewer clients. Planned Parenthood’s revenue consistently exceeds its expenses by a substantial margin—the difference was $245 million in the last fiscal year alone.

In the year ending June 2018, Planned Parenthood received $564 million in government reimbursements and grants. Although federal dollars are not supposed to directly fund abortion (except in rare cases), the money Planned Parenthood receives is fungible and serves to support its abortion activities. Moreover, many states, including Minnesota, directly reimburse Planned Parenthood and other abortion centers for elective abortions through their Medicaid programs.

Planned Parenthood and politics

Planned Parenthood’s political arms oppose any restrictions on abortion considered by Congress, state legislatures, and the courts. Planned Parenthood opposes limits on late abortions, partial-birth and dismemberment abortions, and taxpayer funding of abortions. It opposes parental involvement (for minors) and informed consent requirements before women undergo abortion. It opposes licensing and inspection of abortion facilities. And—perhaps most of all—it opposes any reduction of its own taxpayer funding.

Planned Parenthood also spends heavily to elect candidates to office who favor unlimited abortion and support funding for Planned Parenthood. Planned Parenthood has become, as the Washington Post reports, “a powerful political juggernaut.”<sup>3</sup>

“I’d say a lot of people want liver. And for that reason, most providers will do this case under ultrasound guidance, so they’ll know where they’re putting their forceps. We’ve been very good at getting heart, lung, liver, because we know that, so I’m not gonna crush that part, I’m gonna basically crush below, I’m gonna crush above, and I’m gonna see if I can get it all intact.”

—Deborah Nucatola, senior director of medical services at Planned Parenthood (discussing the harvesting of organs from aborted unborn children)<sup>6</sup>

Planned Parenthood and scandal

Abortion isn’t the only reason that Planned Parenthood is controversial. Some former employees, for example, have filed whistleblower lawsuits alleging fraud, and many audits have found Planned Parenthood facilities overbilling the government.<sup>4</sup> A 2018 investigation found numerous cases of Planned Parenthood failing to report child sexual abuse.<sup>5</sup> And recent sting videos show Planned Parenthood executives discussing the harvesting of fetal body parts (such as liver and brain) in exchange for compensation from outside companies.<sup>6</sup>

Planned Parenthood and women’s health

Planned Parenthood claims that it is essential to women’s health. But it provides a very limited range of actual health services. Far better alternatives are available for women who need care. Federally qualified health centers, unlike Planned Parenthood, provide comprehensive health care to low-income women and men.<sup>7</sup> They also outnumber Planned Parenthood clinics 16-to-1.<sup>8</sup> If women’s health care (rather than abortion) is a priority of government, then public funding should be redirected from Planned Parenthood to these full-service health centers. That’s what federal proposals to defund Planned Parenthood have sought to do. For women facing unexpected and challenging pregnancies, pregnancy care centers provide practical support and assistance. Unlike Planned Parenthood, they offer women positive alternatives to abortion. And they greatly outnumber Planned Parenthood clinics both in Minnesota and nationwide.<sup>9</sup>
